Something nice for Breakfast?

Why, yes, ma'am, here is some splendid bacon.

It is wonderfully toothsome, mild, sweet and as healthful as anything you could eat.

NO MA'AM it isn't just the same as the rest—Quite a bit different.

This Bacon started to be good before it was Bacon. The breeding, you know, then the feeding.

Cured more carefully than most Bacons, too.

Really, we don't think you will be able to find anything anywhere QUITE so nice for breakfast.

Local and Personal

The Methodist Sunday School will hold its annual picnic at Congress Springs tomorrow.

P. B. Payne made a business trip to San Francisco Saturday in the interests of the Campbell F. U. Pkg. Co.

J. E. Wiesendanger is the proud possessor and "chuffer" of a new five-passenger Stoddard-Dayton Car.

Miss Ada Collins who graduates from the Normal School this year has been elected to teach at the Moreland school.

Harry Billings, who was run down by an automobile while riding a motorcycle has greatly improved and re-entered school yesterday.

Miss Marie Sawyer returned Sunday from a successful year of teaching near King City. She expects to return there to her duties in August.

The village decorator, Chas. Sutter, has been giving the John Preston residence a new Bulgarian dress. He's always up to the latest styles.

Chas. Sutter has begun the finishing touches to the interior of the Ralston Alison residence and the family expect to occupy their new home about the 15th inst.

Mrs. Henry Campbell went to Capitola, Tuesday, for a short outing at the seashore and Mrs. W. R. Copeland went Wednesday to remain with her for awhile.

Mrs. A. I. Cramer of Oakland and Mrs. W. E. Davis of San Francisco came down Sunday and were guests of Mrs. Cramer's uncle, Joshua Downing, for a few days.

T. F. Bell of Berkeley, a graduate of Campbell High '07 made a pleasant call at the Press office while on a visit here. Mr. Bell is now a medical student at the State University.

J. L. Hagelin returned Monday evening from a two week's business trip to Seattle. Miss Anna accompanied him to San Francisco where she visited relatives during his absence.

Mrs. Geo. E. Hyde left Thursday for a two week's visit with her son, Otis E., at Monrovia.

Grandma Messerschmidt and Mr. and Mrs. Stocking were guests at the J. D. Sawyer home yesterday.

Lady's Cushion comfort sole shoes Hand turned with Rubber Heel. Price $2.50. See them at Campbell Shoe Store.—Adv.

Deacon S. G. Nelson took Mrs. Nelson, Mrs. A. B. Cowles, Mrs. G. E. and Mrs. C. Atkinson, to Niles yesterday to attend the combined meeting of the W. B. M. P. and W. H. M. U. which is in session.

Fire Chief Jos. Cronon of Santa Clara, was in Campbell Wednesday evening to see Grandpa Brown. Before leaving he promised to call again in the near future and stay longer. "Young Men for War, Old Men for Council."

Thru a misunderstanding of names the Press made a misstatement as to the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph H. Hyde, who are living in the house recently completed by D. W. Waite, on south Second Street.

The J. F. Wilson, Cramer and Alison families autoed to Pacific Grove Thursday evening and spent Memorial Day at the beach. While there Carroll had the misfortune to gash his elbow on a jagged rock but is o.k. now.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Stewart and daughter, Agnes, left Wednesday for a two week's pleasure trip in the Yosemite National Park. During their absence, Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Newcomb will take care of their small children and the ranch.

Mrs. A. E. Wood and family motored down from Sonoma Co. and were weekend guests of their cousin, J. M. Butts. They were delighted with the beauties of this valley, and lavish in their praise of the new Odd Fellow's Home and surroundings.

Elenzer Ray and wife of Fruitvale St attended services at the M. E. Church last Sabbath morning and in the afternoon called on Grandpa Brown and his granddaughter, Lou Ella Brown of Superior, Nebraska, who is now making her home with him.

Mesdames Chas. W. Sutter, W. R. Coupland and B. Downing entertained the local Grange at its semi-monthly banquet Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Downing. At eight o'clock the guests sat down to a most delicious dinner after which a short impromptu program was given.

Judge B. F. Hoag of Chino, Cal., made a short visit with his brother, E. W. B. Hoag and family, combining business and pleasure. This being his first trip to the Santa Clara Valley he was very favorably impressed with this part of the state. Miss Ruth Hoag accompanied him home for a visit with relatives and friends in Los Angeles, Pasadena and Chino.

On account of the picnics of M. E. Sunday School, Minnesotans and New Yorkers at Congress Springs tomorrow, (June 7), a trailer will be put on the interurban car which leaves Campbell 9:28. Reduced rate tickets may be secured of Agent Berry or some one in charge of tickets. You cannot secure a reduced rate of the conductor. Come to the Campbell station to depart.

The reception tendered the Eighth Grade of the Grammar School Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Ainsley was a very pleasant affair. The spacious lawn and porch were gaily decorated with Japanese lanterns. A variety of outdoor and indoor games was followed by refreshments that completed a delightful evening. The faculty of the grammar school and some of the mothers acted as patronesses and chaperones.

The Campbell Grammar team won another victory Monday afternoon, defeating the Los Gatos team, 11 to 4. The home team has lost but one game this season and that when it was severely crippled by the absence of the catcher. The line up was as follows: Joe Gomes, R. F. Eugene Seranton, C. F. Ernest Downing, L. F. Jack Charlton, 3d B; Bert Bennar, S. S; Edgar Kennedy, 2d B; Ennis Mullace, 1st B; James Huntley, P; Henry Oliver, C.

Guy Sheppard was the victim Saturday of a serious accident. He was hit directly on the eyeball with a cherry which ruptured one of the blood vessels, completely blinding him in that eye. He visited an eye specialist immediately and although the injured member is improving it will probably be weak. Children in this community are extremely careless about throwing stones and other missiles. Several people in attendance at athletic events on the school grounds have been hit with different things, a number quite severely.

The Seniors returned from their outing in the Santa Cruz Mountains, Monday evening. The story is current that Wood(en)-Peanuts were lost on the hillside for some time. They had been catching fish with considerable success. Alice Duncan, overcome with fears of wild beasts, was sent home to mama. Herman Freyschlag landed an 18-in steel-head trout which was the prize of the trip. A muck, mild eyed cow put the brave hikers to flight on the first day out. Freeman Duncan is a great lover of pie. Like the "Bear" that he is, he just rolled in the sweets.

Killed by Electric Car

William Forbes, one of the pioneer residents of the Moreland district, was struck and almost instantly killed by a Peninsular car Tuesday afternoon at 4:15.

The old gentleman had been hauling water for the irrigation of his yard. He had watered all afternoon, but thought that one more load was needed, and accordingly he started after it. The car tracks run immediately in front of the yard, between the place and the road. The team had been standing in the road, the late Mr. Forbes having carried the water from the barrels across the track into the yard. It was known that the car was approaching, but the deceased thought he would have time to cross before the car rounded the bend. He started for the wagon and was struck when almost across, dying a few minutes later. An inquest was held over the body at ten o'clock Wednesday.

The car was the second section of a train on the way to the car barns. No blame is attached to John A. Marcum, motorman, as the bell was sounded as warning, and only the rashness of Forbes in attempting to make the crossing as he heard the car approaching is responsible for the accident. The last words of the deceased were:

"I thought I could make the crossing." Deceased is survived by two sisters, Ida Forbes, and Mrs. H. G. Shirley, and a son, George, who is at present in Nevada.

Mr. Forbes was a member and regular attendant at the local Methodist church for a number of years past and all who knew him speak well of him. The funeral services will be held from his home on Saratoga avenue this afternoon at two o'clock, the Rev. J. F. Wilson officiating.

Auto Ran Over Mr. Sargent

A. E. Sargent barely escaped with his life Saturday evening when he was run down by an auto. He had been to a neighbor's and was returning home, when Mrs. Boomer, of San Jose, driving her Baker electric car came from behind. Whether she became excited and lost control of the car or Mr. Sargent tried to cross in front of the car was not learned. Mr. Sargent was thrown to the ground and the machine passed over him causing a compound comminuted fracture at the left ankle, fractures of both bones of the right forearm and arm and severe bruises on the cheek and across the abdomen, and lacerating his nose, face and head.

Dr. Merrill was called by Manuel Silva who lives near by and an ambulance was called from San Jose. Mr. Sargent was taken to the Women's and Children's hospital where the fractures were reduced and the patient cared for. At last report he is doing nicely and his recovery is only a matter of time.

He is seventy-four years old and considering his age, he has withstood the shock wonderfully.

Mrs. Boomer has called on him several times since the accident.

New Neighbors Here

The Geo. E. Hyde & Co. has been making extensive preparations for the coming fruit season and will be able to handle more fruit this year than ever before. The company will be prepared to handle all kinds of green and dried fruits in any manner the patron may choose.

Ralph H. Hyde, who has been in the insurance business in San Jose and for the past four years head of the insurance department of one of the best companies there has associated himself with the Geo. E. Hyde & Co. and will have charge of the green fruit department in the business and assist in the management of the packing plant, also incidentally is prepared to solicit insurance. Mr. Hyde who is a hustler for business and a booster for his community, has come to make his home here and we are glad to welcome him to the business circles of Campbell.

Mrs. Hyde, with her charming manner and sweet voice, will be a welcome addition in social circles of our community.

Gophers to Picnic

The annual picnic of the Minnesotans will be held Saturday at Congress Spgs. The executive committee, Mrs. M. E. Purmort of Anoka, J. E. Palmer of Minneapolis and H. C. Smith of St. Cloud, have made arrangements for a short after-dinner program as follows:

Opening, Minnesota State Song. Invocation, Rev. C. W. Merrill. Reading, Miss Ada Collins. Vocal Solo, Miss Muriel Palmer. Reading, Mrs. Harry C. Smith. Reminiscences, Minnesotans. Quartet. Vocal Solo, Mrs. J. L. Pendleton. The "Gopher Family" dinner will be at noon. Black coffee and sugar free.

Visions of Contentment

Appear in the steam of a cup of our tea or coffee. With each sup or swallow there is greater satisfaction. If all tea and coffee are good, just try ours and find them better. Fuller flavor, finer aroma, are their attributes. To taste them once is to prefer them always.

Save all the Time

Many a boy thinks he will save when he gets to be a young man. Then he thinks he will save next time his salary is raised. And when he is old he will say it is too late to save.

As a matter of fact, every person, young or old, ought to save a part of his income all the time.

Saving is made easy at the

CLING TO THE OLD FAVORITES

Those Whose Mission It is to Entertain and Amuse the Public Have Discovered This Fact.

"Why do they pull off the same old jokes year after year?" repeated the vaudeville comedian. "Because the new ones are applauded, but the old ones get the encores."

"A man once told me he had read 'David Harum' seven times," he continued, "and enjoyed it more each time. Yes, sir, it is the old stuff that they want."

"How many times after the popular singer has finished the new song have you heard him asked for some old, old one, say 'Annie Laurie' for instance?"

"The circus draws just as large a crowd now as it did years ago, and yet, it is 'the same old circus,' if on a larger scale. But the clowns spring the same old jokes that our grandfathers laughed at years before we thought of a circus. The toy pistol, the slapstick, the padded stomach, the whitened face, the same old antics which brought forth roars of laughter then create the same merriment now."

"This is true even to the trained animals. With the troupe of trained dogs is there not always a 'clown dog,' which when the trained dog jumps over the backs of the others, crawls underneath while the trainer is looking another way. The 'clown dog' has done the same tricks for ages. He rings the dinner bell and steals the meat, yet his tricks never fail to draw laughter and applause."

"You will hear the father say: 'I must take Mary or John to the circus,' but just watch father and you will notice he enjoys it as much as the children."

"The 'mother-in-law jokes' have been sprung, I think, ever since the world began, and yet they never fail to please."

Tails Grafted on Fishes.

Among the many interesting arts in which the Japanese excel is that of the making of fish-tails. Almost every one has seen the bush-tailed goldfish, with its four, five, and sometimes more, long, wavy tails, but it is not generally known that most of them are not its own.

When the little goldfish are very, very young their flesh is as clear as glass, so that one can see every bone in their tiny bodies. At this time the few that are born with two or more tails are put by themselves, and then a queer-looking old Jap, with a great magnifying glass fastened in front of his eyes, and wee, sharp tools handy, reaches down under the water and cuts off the tails of the plain little fish, and then three or four of these tails are joined on the backbone where the one was cut off and fastened there with tiny bandages until they grow fast.

The Japanese, who are very skillful in queer things of this kind, grow the finest goldfish in the world, and it is a very good business, for very fine fish of the kind often bring as much as $300 to $500, and one sold not long ago for $1,000.

New Paris Revolver Suffocates.

The "suffocating revolver" has been used by the Paris police for the first time, and its effectiveness has been amply demonstrated. The weapon was invented as a sequel to the motor bandit sieges, when it was realized that there was need for some method of overcoming the resistance of dangerous criminals, without so much risk to the police.

The weapon was used in the Passey quarter, where a young crook named Vitale Pothin, belonging to a wealthy family, had suddenly become mad.

Armed with a revolver and several boxes of cartridges he had barricaded himself in his room at a flat, and for several hours had fired at any one who had ventured to approach. A policeman narrowly escaped being shot.

Steel bucklers were then fitted to a couple of detectives, who crept up to a small window and fired the contents of their "suffocating revolvers." The room was filled with acrid smoke, the Pothin, half suffocated, made a dash to the window, where he was captured by the detectives.

Choosing a Career.

"Well, Tommy, what do you want to be when you grow up? A lawyer?"

"Naw."

"Oh, I know. You want to be a policeman or an engineer?"

"Naw, I don't. I wanna be a bricklayer."

"A bricklayer? Why, that's hard work."

"So's everything. But there's so many days a bricklayer don't hafta work on account of the weather—and there's so much rotten weather."

Chesterfield at the Gate.

"Which one of these trains must I take for Higginsville?"

"Madam," answered the polite attendant, "I would be incapable of denying you if you wished to take any one of these trains for Higginsville, but the only train that could possibly carry you to Higginsville has been gone for half an hour."

Occasionally.

CAD and BELLS

ONE ESSENTIAL WAS LACKING

Reason Old Man Hadn't Caught Any Fish Was Simply Because He Hadn't Been Fishing.

John D. Rockefeller and a party of friends were taking a trip across country in Georgia last fall when they came to a stream which they had to cross by ferry. The ferry-boat was operated by a white-haired old negro, and while they were floating across Mr. Rockefeller tried to make conversation.

"Jack," he asked the old man, "have you caught any fish today?"

"Naw, suh," replied Jack, dejectedly.

"The fishing," observed Rockefeller, "must be pretty poor."

"I spec' it is," agreed Jack, sadly.

"You haven't caught any fish at all?"

"Not a one."

"That seems strange," continued Rockefeller.

"It do," said Jack, and still his bearing was that of a man weighed down by woe.

"Well, asked Rockefeller, "why is it, do you think, you haven't caught any fish?"

"Humph," said Jack still mournful, "I ain't been fishing today."—Popular Magazine.

Three-Night Run.

Blessed with a sense of humor, Sir Henry Irving was not shut up in his dignity as in a tower. He thoroughly appreciated a palpable hit, even at his own expense.

At a rehearsal of "King Arthur," for which Sir Arthur Sullivan composed incidental music and Sir Edward Burne-Jones designed special costumes, he chanced to overhear the brief monologue that follows:

"Sir 'Emery Irvin,' Sir Arthur Sullivan, Sir Edward Burne-Jones!" came in a growl from a dark corner behind the scenes. "Three bloomin' knights—and that's about what I give it!"

Irving liked to repeat this outburst, which the comparative failure of "King Arthur" made peculiarly opposite.—Youth's Companion.

Into His Own Trap.

In a suit lately tried the plaintiff testified that his financial position had always been a good one. The opposing counsel took him in hand for cross-examination and undertook to break down his testimony upon this point.

"Have you ever been bankrupt?" asked the counsel.

"I have not."

"Now, be careful," admonished the lawyer, with raised finger. "Did you ever stop payment?"

"Yes."

"Ah! I thought we should get at the truth," observed the counsel, with an unpleasant smile. "When did this suspension of payment occur?"

"When I paid all I owed."

TWO VALUES.

Hubby—And do you mean to tell me that dress cost $25?

Wife—Yes, and I mean to tell other people it cost $50.

Just Talking.

"I saw Mrs. Digsworth and Mrs. Hammersley having an animated conversation this morning. I wonder what it was all about."

"Maybe if you'd ask them, they'd wonder, too."

Out of the Question.

"Why don't you take a wife, old chap?"

"Oh, I don't know."

"You must have a reason."

"Well, the fact is I couldn't afford a 1913 wife on my 1902 salary."

Soon Forgotten.

"What lessons my kid has to prepare. Name ten battlefields of the Crimean war."

"Can't you do it?"

"Can't even name ten battlefields of the present war."

HAD NEVER SEEN ONE CHILD

Woman, Noted for Inquisitiveness, Finally Finds Out Why Father Hadn't Seen Baby.

"I have a wife and four children in Chicago, and I have never seen one of them," remarked a Chicago man one evening.

Mrs. Dodge, who was noted for her inquisitiveness, looked toward him in great surprise. After a moment's pause she asked:

"Were you ever blind, Mr. Evans?"

"No, madam," was the reply.

"Did you marry a widow?" the woman inquired.

"No, indeed," he said.

There was silence again while the inquisitive woman tried to solve the problem to her satisfaction. Failing to do so, she asked:

"Didn't I understand you to say, Mr. Evans, that you had a wife and four children in Chicago and had never seen one of them?"

"Yes, that was what I said."

"How can it be that you never saw one of them, Mr. Evans?" asked the woman.

"Why, madam," replied the man, "one of them was born after I left."—Harper's Bazar.

Neither System a Success.

An old Irishman was confiding to a friend that he had little confidence either in life insurance companies or in savings banks.

"Now, a cousin of mine," he said, "had his life insured for the benefit of his widdy, an' ather all he niver had wan, for 'twas him that lived to be 89 an' her that died."

"Wid banks it's the other way. There was me uncle. He put money in the bank, an' he kept stickin' it in and stickin' it in, in the hopes that whin old age come he'd take it out gradual like an' enjy himself. Insid of that, 'twas him that had the widdy before he touched 60. They're wurrked on the wrong plan, the both of thim institutions, an' it's a wonder that anybody's found to spake a good word for thim."—New York Press.

BETTER LATE THAN NEVER.

Cholly—Will your sister be engaged long?

Lulu—Well, it's taken her long enough to get engaged.

"Crossed the Pond."

"I have a friend I want you to meet."

"Where is he?"

"That's the man over there in a gray suit."

"Oh, I overheard him talking just now. He's too big a man for me to meet."

"What do you mean?"

"He calls the Atlantic ocean a pond."

Between Girls.

"Why the cogitation?"

"I dislike to take my engagement ring to a jeweler, and yet I should like to know what it cost. But it would embarrass me to take it to a jeweler."

"You needn't. There are at least two girls in our set who have had it valued."

Merely for Show.

"Does your wife permit you to keep a pass key?"

"Yes."

"That shows she's a broad-minded woman."

"Not so fast. I don't know where my wife got the pass key she lets me keep. It doesn't fit our door."

Nobody Knows.

"Spectators try to rattle players at a ball game."

"Yes."

"And that is considered all right."

"Well?"

"I saw the same thing tried at a billiard tournament and the offender was promptly ejected. Why is this?"

Big Deal.

"How's business?"

"Fine," said the real estate man.

"Just sold my big apartment house, taking in part payment a farm, a factory site, and a row of small bricks."

A $200,000 transaction, and $18 of it was in cash."

Positively Brutal.

"Dashby took too many highballs last night and wayed sentimental."

"He did, eh?"

"Yes, and I said he sprinkled his past with tears."

"Umph! He'd better use chloride of lime."

A Simile.

"To say a man is 'like a fish out of water' means that he is decidedly out of his natural environment."

"Quite so. That's just the way an old-fashioned gentleman feels when he converses with an up-to-date female whose fad is eugenics."

BEFORE the White Man CAME

A NATIVE FEAST

MARRIAGE among Hawaiians, especially those of high rank, has always been attended by more or less ceremony, writes a Honolulu correspondent of the New York Evening Post.

The wedding festivities of a high-born maiden on the island of Hawaii last summer continued without pause for four days and nights. Nearly all the native population of the big island enjoyed, in one way or another, this great feast with its outdoor sports and games, but I doubt whether—in spite of the modern education and elegance of the lovely bride, in spite of the wealth and magnificence of her family—this wedding equaled, to the Hawaiian mind, a marriage of the high born in the olden days.

Before the coming of the haole (white man) to these sun blest isles, when a high chief wished to take unto himself a wife he would have gathered together from among his people a group of the most attractive maidens. Smooth and straight of limb were these maidens, glossy haired, with the gold of the tropical sun glistening in the ruddy bronze of their satiny skins. None among them was there who was not desirable. But the young chief must not choose too hastily, for upon his wahine (woman) depended in a large measure the future fate of his people, the line of royalty in Hawaii descending then as now, through the maternal side of the house. Therefore, the young chief must look well to his choice.

Sometimes, in his perplexity, he would call to his assistance a kahuna (medicine man), who would invoke the aid of the gods in the momentous selection to be made. Then were things simplified for him. He no longer had any will in the matter, but became the instrument of the gods themselves.

Taking Charge of the Affair. Upon the kahuna fell the duty of taking temporal charge of the affair. At a signal from him the virgins, each with her hula gourd in which were pebbles male and female, would squat in line before the young chief. With right arm holding the hula gourd extended they begin, with low moaning, to chant the life story of him who comes to seek a bride.

Louder and stronger swells the chant as the singers go on to tell of the young chief's beauty as a child, of how his mother loved him, of his speed in running, and his strength and grace in swimming, in throwing the discus, and in riding the bounding surf board, until, with a grand crescendo it reaches the climax of his triumph over the great shark, or the poisonous eel. With this the singers spring to their feet and the hula dance is on.

Now the chant becomes a refrain, swelling and sinking, falling and rising, accompanied always by the rattling of the pebbles, male and female, in the hula gourds. In perfect, unbroken rhythm the virgins dance, now twirling the rattling gourds over their heads, now striking their palms together four times, or kneeling to thump four times on the mat at their feet. From their birth they have been trained to do this dance. With joints made supple by exercises devised for that purpose they whirl their loins here, there, the muscles under their shining skins moving in rhythmic measures to the chant and the rattle of the hula gourds.

At last, through the kahuna, the gods interpose. At a signal from the kahuna the dancers recede and form a circle within a circle. Round and round they dance, breaking and reforming the circles, changing and interchanging. Now, for the young chief the gods will choose his bride. The kahuna lifts his hand, the young chief takes a backward step, closes his eyes and lets fly an arrow from his bow.

The Arrow of Chance. With swift, unerring instinct the arrow wings its way among the dancers, to fall at the feet of the most beautiful, the most desirable of the virgins. The gods have chosen—but as yet the chief does not know their choice.

The dancing and the chanting have ceased with the fall of the arrow. The young chief opens his eyes, but he cannot see the arrow.

"Pua Nei! Pua Nei!" he calls, and straightway the hiding arrow, from its place at the virgin's feet, answers, in a clear voice:

"Ne! Ne!"

With this, the other maidens step back and—her young beauty all shimmering in the sun—the heaven chosen stands revealed to him who has come seeking his bride.

In the background a soft voice speaks of the glories of the chosen one. Another takes up the theme and from lip to lip the song is carried till all the voices blend in one sweet cadence that swings softly up and down, up and down, with the softly swaying bodies of the chanters. Of her beauty they sing, of her grace in dancing the hula and her wonderful skill in the lomilomi (massaging). Presently, keeping time to the rattle of her own hula gourd, the bride-to-be begins to dance. With slim, brown body lightly poised and dainty feet quiescent, she dances the marriage dance, the muscles under her glowing skin rippling like tiny waves in a sunlit pool. That is the young man's signal. With a cry of "Thou art mine, O beloved; thenceforth thou shalt dance for me alone in my hut—for me and none other!" he seizes the maiden in his arms and bears her away with him through the forest.

Then begin the preparations for the wedding. A great luau, or feast, must be made—called the luau or ohaina-male (wedding feast). Some go to sea to bring back fish that are of fine flavor and good omen. Others bring fatted pigs, fatted pups, kalo already made into the delicious poi, and sugar cane. Awa, too, must be procured, and well born men and maidens with clean, strong teeth must be found, for be it known that the awa root must be chewed in the mouth until it is soft and pulpy, placed then in a kao bowl, water poured over it, and then strained, to make the liquor for the ohaina-male, otherwise the feast would lack good cheer.

Then the drum man with his two drums appears. The drums, a small one and a larger one, are made of the hollowed sections of cocoanut trees, with the hollowed end covered with shark skin drawn taut and fastened with thongs. With a drum on either side of him, the drummer beats with his fingers, so that those hearing him catch the drummed-out words: "Hoao na 'li e! (The chiefs are married!)"

With a shout the words are taken up by all who are near, and in from their sports—surfboard riding, racing, arrow shooting, dancing, swimming, discus throwing, wrestling—come the wedding guests, and out from his hut comes the young chief, with his slim brown wahine. The bridegroom and his lady touch noses. All the high chiefs among the guests touch noses. Then an old chief, bearing a wonderful piece of tapa cloth, comes forward. The wedding pair face each other, and the old chief throws the tapa over them both.

Four times four prayers the kahuna utters—being four to the gods of the air, four to the gods of the sea, four to the gods of marriage and four to the gods of birth. All the high chiefs and the people again join noses. From every throat present swells forth four times, in a triumphant chant: "Hoao na 'li e! Hoao na 'li e! Hoao na 'li e! Hoao na 'li e!"

"The chiefs are married," and the guests sit down with them to the wedding feast.

Religions of the World.

So far from it being true that the Christians "outnumber all other religions combined," it is a fact that they are not near so strong, numerically speaking, as some of the other forms of faith. There are, of all varieties, about 400,000,000 of Christians in the world. The Buddhists number 500,000,000, the Mohammedans 300,000,000, the Confucians 100,000,000, Hindoos 200,000,000, leaving about a million savages or semi-civilized, whose theological opinions, if they have any, it would be difficult to classify.

Easy Marks.

Some men haven't any more caution when they happen to get a little money, than to show it to the family.

UNFINISHED

One sunny afternoon in late September a cab drove up to a certain house in Kensington Gardens. As the driver drew rein a gray-haired lady, whose eyes were red with weeping, ran down the steps and took the hand of the girl who descended from the vehicle. She was a beautiful girl, tender-eyed, and with a sweet mobile mouth, but at the present moment her face was charged with deep sorrow.

"My dear child," Mrs. Cray said, with trembling lips. "Oh, I am so glad you have come! He is asking for you continuously."

"I took the first train directly I got your telegram," Ella Marston answered, her self-possession giving way at the sight of the widow's grief. "How—how is he now?"

"My dear, we do not know. He—he was going on so well; but yesterday morning he had a relapse—and—and—but come in."

Ella followed her through the hall and up the stairs, groping her way through a mist of tears. A minute later she was standing by the white, pain-drawn face.

"Don't grieve," he said quietly. "Perhaps it is all for the best. Only I wanted to see you once again before—"

"Oh, Edgar, you must not say that!" she cried, the tears streaming down her cheeks. "You will get better."

He shook his head.

"I shall never get better, Ella," he replied. "I am dying—I know it—and I could die contentedly, I could die happy, if I only knew—"

Then he looked at her wistfully.

"Will you?" he said, eagerly, his eyes shining with a new light, his cheeks flushing. "Oh, but I don't want you to do it unless you wish."

"Oh, Edgar, I do wish!"

"No, no, but—ah, Ella, you do not know what it is. I have sent for you on purpose, and now I am afraid—"

"And I must know," she said softly. "Come, Edgar!"

"You shall know!" he cried. "Ella, I love you! I have always loved you—that is what I wanted to say. If—if you could only tell me that you care for me in return, then I should die happy."

She was silent. She stood there, her head downcast, trying to collect her thoughts. His words had paralyzed her. Throughout their long friendship she had never suspected this, and now it wrung her heart grievously. For it was not as he wished. She did not love him. And yet she did love. In the few short weeks of her absence from home she had met one who had become all in all to her.

"Ella, my darling, speak to me," he cried. "Tell me that you care for me. I—I am dying, tell me."

She opened her lips, but no words came from them. She could not tell him. It was impossible. Then a sudden way out of the difficulty presented itself. It was in her power to render his last moments the happiest of his life. He had done much for her, and he was dying. Surely she might do this, and yet be pardoned.

"Kiss me—once," he whispered.

And she pressed her warm, red lips to his cold, colorless ones.

Some hours later she sat in her father's drawing room with the man she loved. He was a tall, good-looking young fellow, and nature had endowed him with all those attributes which find favor in women's eyes. They sat on a low couch and he held her hand, she told him of her visit to the dying man—not all of it, though, for there was one part she would never tell.

"Poor fellow!" he said in a tone of sympathy. "It's hard luck to be cut off at his time of life, just in his prime and with the world at his feet—but there, he may not die."

"May not? Oh, Frank, it is useless clinging to that hope! The doctors have given him up."

"Doctors are wrong sometimes."

"Yes, I know, but they are right in this case. You would say so had you seen him."

"I am very sorry," he said, speaking after a short pause.

The next morning, as they sat on the terrace after breakfast, a cab stopped at the gate and a lady got out.

"It is Mrs. Cray," Ella said, a

Why She Hurried.
Dorothy had heard her mother talking of Lent, and frequently noted the word fast, but it conveyed an entirely different meaning to her from that in which it was used. Dorothy's mother observes Lent by fasting, but evidently her daughter has not come to understand the meaning of the word.

On Ash Wednesday morning she was doing a little washing and ironing for her doll, and was going about it in such a hurry that her mother inquired the reason.

"Well, mother," she replied, "isn't this the day you have to do everything fast?"

Not Long to Wait

Little Max was so restless and fussy when his mother took him downtown that he caused her no end of bother. Finally the mother exclaimed impatiently:

"Well, young man, it will be a cold day when I bring you downtown with me again."

Looking up into her face with perfect innocence the youngster said:

"Pretty soon it will be winter, won't it, mamma?"

Number of Hairs on the Head

HOW THIS WOMAN FOUND HEALTH

Would not give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for All Rest of Medicine in the World.

Utica, Ohio.—"I suffered everything from a female weakness after baby came. I had numb spells and was dizzy, had black spots before my eyes, my back ached and I was so weak I could hardly stand up. My face was yellow, even my fingernails were colorless and I had displacement. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now I am stout, well and healthy. I can do all my own work and can walk to town and back and not get tired. I would not give your Vegetable Compound for all the rest of the medicines in the world. I tried doctor's medicines and they did me no good."—Mrs. MARY EARLEWINE, R.F.D. No. 3, Utica, Ohio.

Another Case

Nebo, Ill.—"I was bothered for ten years with female troubles and the doctors did not help me. I was so weak and nervous that I could not do my work and every month I had to spend a few days in bed. I read so many letters about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound curing female troubles that I got a bottle of it. It did me more good than anything else I ever took and now it has cured me. I feel better than I have for years and tell everybody what the Compound has done for me. I believe I would not be living to-day but for that."—Mrs. HETTIE GREENSTREET, Nebo, Illinois.

COMMON WORDS IN ENGLAND

First Thing an Englishman Notices in America Is That Nobody Says "Thank You."

The most used words in England are "Thank you," says the New York Sun. It means anything from "yes" and "no" to "please get off my hat." When in doubt always say "Thank you."

When you give a servant anything he says "Thank you," and when he gives you something he says "Thank you." The first thing an Englishman notices when he comes to America is that nobody says "Thank you."

He gives the taxi driver "thrippence" and then misses his favorite "Thank you." At least what the taxi driver says doesn't sound like "Thank you."

When you reach France, however, you may relapse into all your little home comforts. You may pick your teeth and manœuvre your nails in a restaurant, and you can eat anything you like with your fingers. You may omit your daily tub and patronize the "parfumerie."

But if you wish to be a gentleman you must wear smart clothes, smart clothes consisting chiefly of gayly colored waistcoats, socks and ties.

No man is Stronger Than his Stomach

The Medical Adviser by R. V. Pierce, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y. answers hosts of delicate questions about which every man or woman, single or married ought to know. Sent free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay for wrapping and mailing.

LET the greatest athlete have dyspepsia and his strength will soon fail. One's stamina—forcefulness and strength of mind or muscle depend upon the blood, and the blood in turn, requires a healthy stomach, for the stomach is the laboratory where the food is digested and such elements are taken up—or assimilated—which make blood. In consequence all the organs of the body, such as heart, lungs, liver and kidneys, as well as the nervous system, feel the bad effect if the stomach is deranged.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

helps the stomach to digest food properly, starts the liver into new activity, removing the poisons from the blood, and the various organs get rich, red blood, instead of being ill-nourished. The refreshing influence of this extract of native medicinal plants has been favorably known for over 40 years. Everywhere some neighbor can tell you of the good it has done.

Sold by all medicine dealers in liquid or tablet form; or send 5-cent stamps to Dr. Pierce, Medical Discoveries, Hotel, Buffalo, and a trial box will be mailed you.

PECULIAR FEATURE OF VIXEN

Like Other Predaceous Creatures They Do Not Disturb Game Near Breeding Haunts.

There is a very peculiar feature in connection with all predaceous creatures, both furred and feathered, when breeding, and it is that they do not appear to interfere with game near their breeding haunts.

Even a vixen will leave the earth containing her cubs, pass right through rabbits feeding near, and never make an attempt to catch one; although half a mile distant she will chase down an unfortunate rabbit and return with it to her youngsters.

This habit of the fox is pointed out as a proof of the animal's cunning, and her desire to curry favor with the owners of game and poultry near her nursery, for were she to commit extensive depredations there the losses she occasioned would be resented and she and her youngsters would soon be destroyed.

However, the vixen's motive for leaving things around her earth untouched is not that with which she is credited; were she to make a clearance there little would be left for her cubs when they commence to hunt on their own account, and it is untouched for their benefit.

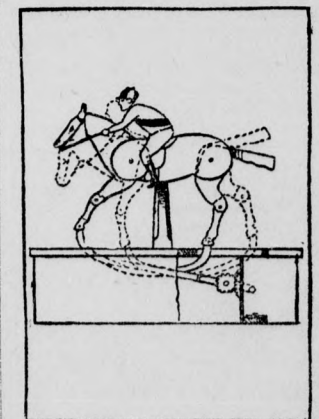

When the cubs are able to wander a little from the earth there is a speedy disappearance of the rabbits, etc., near, rendered all the more rapid because the vixen has passed among them and they have grown to ignore foxes.

The active cubs give them a rude awakening. It is the instinct of mother love which induces a vixen to reserve provender close by for her cubs.

TROTS IN LIFELIKE FASHION

Legs and Head of Beast Made to Move as Jockey Seems to Urge Him—Operated by Crank.

An amusing toy in the form of a galloping horse has been designed by a Kentucky man. It is particularly appropriate these days when mechanical toys are absorbing the youth of the land. The body of the horse is fixed to a standard rising from the case, but the forelegs and hindlegs are pivoted to the body and at their middle joints. The tail and neck are also pivoted to the body and the body of the jockey is pivoted at the hips. The horse's feet are fastened to swinging shafts that operate in the base by means of a rotatable gear. As one shaft is pushed forward the other comes backward, each carrying with it a

Mabel's auntie was expected on a visit. Just as she was almost due to arrive a telegram came which read: "Missed train. Will start at same time tomorrow."

Mabel rushed home from school expecting to meet auntie. Instead of doing so, however, she was shown the telegram. She read it through carefully and laboriously, and then remarked:

"How silly of auntie, mamma."

"Why, dear?" inquired her mother.

"Well, don't you see? If she starts tomorrow at the same time she'll lose her train again."—Pearson's Weekly.

Blood Bath Knocks Rheumatism

Remarkable Effects of a Remedy That Actually Irrigates the Entire Blood Supply

It sounds queer to take a blood bath but that is precisely the effect of a most remarkable remedy known as S. S. S. It has the peculiar action of soaking through the intestines directly into the blood. In a few minutes its influence is at work in every artery, vein and tiny capillary. Every membrane, every organ of the body, every emunctory becomes in effect a filter to strain the blood of impurities. The stimulating properties of S. S. S. compel the skin, liver, bowels, kidneys, bladder to all work to the end of casting out every irritating, every pain-inflicting atom of poison; it dissolves by irrigation all accumulations in the joints, causes acid accretions to dissolve, renders them neutral and scatters those peculiar formations in the nerve centers that cause such mystifying and often baffling rheumatic pains.

And best of all, this remarkable remedy is welcome to the weakest stomach. If you have drugged yourself until your stomach is nearly paralyzed, you will be astonished to find that S. S. S. gives no sensation but goes right to work. This is because it is a pure botanical infusion, is taken naturally into your blood just as pure air is inhaled naturally into your lungs.

The great Swift Laboratory has spent millions of dollars in perfecting, procuring and placing in the hands of the public this wonderful remedy. So give your blood a good bath with S. S. S., for it knocks the worst forms of rheumatism and gives you freedom to enjoy life.

You can get it at any drug store at $1.00 a bottle. It is a standard remedy, recognized everywhere as the greatest blood antidote ever discovered. If yours is a peculiar case and you desire expert advice, write to The Swift Specific Co., 160 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

W. C. T. U. Notes.

The Campbell Woman's Christian Temperance Union met Wednesday afternoon in the pleasant home of Mrs. Baker, superintendent of the Evangelistic department.

Devotionals were led by Mrs. Savage. Roll call responded to with quotations as usual.

The committee on anti-cigarette work asked for more time in which to complete its task, which request was granted. Reports were given of visits to the sick, bereaved and shut-ins, of visits to the county Hospital, of donations of flowers, fruits, delicacies etc., showing considerable activity along these lines. Mrs. Kennedy spoke of the high tribute which her pastor, Rev. Wilson, recently gave the W. C. T. U., and told of his earnest plea that every Christian man, woman and child should come out and be identified with this important part of the Lord's work. He spoke eloquently of the little white ribbon bow that had been pinned to his pulpit and how it had been a gentle reminder, week by week, of the great work needing to be done.

Mrs. Olmstead read several clippings, showing the terrible devastation which is wrought upon the characters of the young by the use of the deadly cigarette. The welcoming service was effectively led by the president, Mrs. Olmstead, when Mrs. Caswell and Mrs. Ryan were cordially welcomed into this band of workers who know the joy of "doing good according to a plan."

The date for the opening of the Coffee Club was set at June 14th. Mrs. Ryan of Seattle was introduced as the new manager, and gave a timely and interesting little talk. She has decided to have a sale of cooked foods at the Coffee Club on June 14th and thereafter three meals a day will be served there, excepting Sundays when only two meals will be served.

At the conclusion of the business session a program was rendered befitting the occasion. It being Flower Mission Day, Mrs. Whitman read an article from the Union Signal upon "the significance and scope of W. C. T. U. Flower Missions and also spoke upon some delightful experiences resulting from donations of fresh fruits sent to San Francisco and Berkeley.

Miss Lawrence read entertainingly of Flower Mission department and the flood sufferers. Mrs. Savage read a charming poem entitled "Why These Flowers?"

At the close of the program, the hostess served dainty refreshments and a social half hour was enjoyed.

Mrs. Ryan invited the union to hold its next meeting at the Coffee Club June 18th at 2:30 p. m. All are cordially invited to attend whether members or not. Arrangements are now completed for Mrs. Teats, National lecturer from the College of Eugenics in Chicago to speak at an open meeting of the Orchard City Grange on Tuesday evening, June 24th at 8:30 at I. O. O. F. Hall. Mrs. Teats is an interesting speaker and it is expected there will be a large attendance.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages; and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

IN the rush of the fruit season, don't lose sight of the fact that an assembly hall and science department building is an absolute necessity to this community.

HOW does it happen that Col. Roosevelt hasn't any public opinion about legislation against aliens in California? Is it perhaps because he does not want to make enemies, either in the State or out of it?—Boston Globe.

Tee Arr did express himself concerning the alien question once, much to the displeasure of the people of this state, but as Mr. Tee Arr's bosom friends are behind this piece of legislation, he doesn't peep, although it is contrary to his previous stated ideas. The legislation recently enacted was good and it may be that the eyes of some have been made to see.

Should Conserve the Surplus Water For Irrigating Santa Clara Valley

SINCE Mr. A. R. Kanaga of San Francisco, one of the best authorities on irrigation in this country, made his statement that this state and Santa Clara County had millions of dollars due from the reclamation fund, some of Campbell's enterprising citizens have started a movement to secure some of that fund. The plan is to have a storage dam built across the Los Gatos canyon above that city to retain the winter floods in that Natural reservoir for irrigation purposes. There is water enough going to waste every year to supply this entire valley below the canyon. The vast quantity of water that flows down to the Bay every year is lost and has done no good. This should be properly conserved. In the winter, so much water seeps away that it is several days after the heavy rains before a flowing stream reaches here, five miles from the canyon. The thought of this immense natural reservoir is not a new one, but no concerted action has before been taken toward the realization of the fact. Beside being of immeasurable value to the producers of the valley, the assurance of water and crops would make this valley much more densely populated and therefore wealthier.

As Mr. Kanaga has stated, it is up to the people to make the demand for the funds before anything will be done, and Campbell is not going to be behind time in adding her demands and influence to the cause. The committee, C. J. Ringe, J. M. Butts and B. O. Curry, has made arrangements for a public meeting at the Campbell Coffee Club, next Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. At this meeting, State Senators Benson and Jones and Assemblymen Bohnett and Hayes will be present and address the assembly.

This is a project of vital importance to every resident of Santa Clara Valley and everyone should attend and give his influence to the good cause.

Local and Personal

We are glad to note that Col. Ringe is able to be about again after a prolonged illness.

The new S. P. time schedule which goes into effect Sunday will be found elsewhere in these columns.

Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Rodeck returned Tuesday from their visit with their daughter, Mrs. Antrim, at Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. R. K. Thomas returned to Pacific Grove in their auto Tuesday. They will probably remain there for a month or more.

Just as we go to press word was received that Professors Halameick and Kalas, our famous Bohemian musicians, will play a violin and cello duet at the Minnesota picnic program if possible.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Howison and two children, cousins of Chas. Townsend, and Mr. Howison's mother, all of Sandwich, Illinois, spent the week-end visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Townsend.

The Country Woman's Club will hold its annual picnic at Congress Springs on Monday, June 9th. Members and friends invited. Basket lunch, Tea and Coffee, provided. Car leaves 9:25 a. m. Round trip tickets at depot, 25 cents.

Messrs. and Mesdames S. R. Wade and C. B. Miracle will go to Pacific Grove in the latter's car for an outing. Mr. and Mrs. Miracle will remain a few days and Mr. and Mrs. Wade two weeks. With Mr. and Mrs. Thomas they will hold a reunion.

Last Friday the Sunbeams had the go on the has-beens by about two to one, but felt rather shaky at times. Sunny Vollman in the box proved a merciless slayer from the start, striking out some of the best of the old-timers. The O-T's didn't have twirlers enough to go round the Blanchard, McKenzie and Speegle were trying hard enough. Errors were quite plentiful but who should worry, everybody did it.

Bill Speegle made the hit of the day, a homer, and hasn't entirely recovered yet.

The sore-heads were not near so many as the sore muscles, and some declare "never again." Oh, yes, the score, let's see, 11 to 5 in favor of the Sunbeams.

Exposition Notes.

San Diego, Cal.—Ten thousand tiny balloons shot into the air in this city Friday afternoon May 23, each labelled "The San Diego Exposition, San Diego 1915". Each one carried a small card attached, with a word printed on the card.

Over 10,000 persons gathered in the plaza when the tiny voyagers were released and hundreds of the balloons carried away personal cards and messages. The lucky finder of one of these balloons will be well repaid for his trouble in reporting it to the San Diego Ad Club.

The Ad Club of San Diego offers a reward for the return of these balloons from distant places. In order to be sure that there shall be no mistake about the find, the person finding one of them must take it to the editor of the nearest paper, report the place and time of finding it to him, give him the card attached to the balloon and get the editor's signature to the statement he makes in regard to the finding.

This statement he is to send to the Ad Club of San Diego, addressing it to the secretary, and upon verification of the statement, the reward will be paid. As many of the balloons carried the cards of business houses in San Diego that also offer rewards for those found in the farthest outlying places, the lucky finder of one of these will get two rewards, provided his editor can verify his statement as to the finding.

GARNETS BY THE TON.

Garnets are generally classed as precious stones, and a fine gem garnet may be worth from $5 to $25 a carat, according to variety and size, but it is not necessarily true that the owner of a garnet mine is a millionaire because his mine produces garnets by the ton. In fact, the bulk of the garnets produced are measured by the ton, but these of inferior quality are used for abrasive purposes. In 1912 the production of abrasive garnet, according to the United States Geological Survey, amounted to 4,182 short tons, valued at $137,800 so that the average price for a ton of garnets was not quite $33, or considerably less than double the price of a ton of hay.

The production of garnets in 1912 showed an increase of 106 tons in quantity and $16,052 in value compared with 1911. The three garnet-producing States are New York, New Hampshire, and North Carolina.
